You know you want to write a book...you may have even decided what it's going to be about, who your readers will be, how your book will tell your story, help your business, and help other people...but you just can't seem to find the time, the words, the motivation to get it done. You know you want to be an author. So what's stopping you from starting, or finishing and publishing that book of yours?

- Life always gets in the way! I'm too busy at work and at home to find the time to write, even though I really want to do this.
- I'm not sure if what I want to write will really be what readers want to read.
- I've actually started writing my book but feel stuck.
- I've finally written my book (or most of it) but feel it's not good enough to get published...yet
- I just need some help to get it done but am not sure who to turn to and trust.
